1Day1SMC is Saint Mary's first-ever 24-hour giving challenge. We need you to help us reach our 1,000 donor goal and unlock more than $100,000 in challenge gifts. Stay tuned to make a gift and help us spread the word with #1day1smc this Wednesday!

Faculty Award Winners

The four winners of the Committee on Teaching and Scholarship annual faculty awards, which give a $5,000 stipend, are: Jan Doane, English department—Research Scholar; Ellen Rigsby, Communication department—Service Award; Berna Aksu, Management department—Teaching Excellence; and Makiko Imamura, Communication department—Early Career. The first three awards recognize tenured faculty; the Early Career award recognizes a new outstanding pre-tenured track faculty member.

Lysley Tenorio Wins Rome Fellowship

Seminar Madness

The Seminar Madness bracket is down to an elite eight! Saint Augustine is scratching to stay alive, while Dante and Martin Luther King look poised to advance. Vote, share with friends and family, and follow which will become the final four of Seminar readings.

The American Academy of Arts and Letters has awarded SMC English Professor Lysley Tenorio its Rome Fellowship in Literature Prize. The prestigious prize, which provides for a one-year residency in Rome, is awarded to about 30 emerging artists and scholars who represent excellence.

Business and the Challenges of Inequality

Chris Lu, deputy secretary of the United States Labor Department, will give the keynote speech at a half-day conference exploring how the business world can tackle inequality of all kinds, hosted by the Elfenworks Center for Responsible Business on Friday, March 27. SEBA faculty and industry experts will run five workshops and a panel discussion.
