MFA's Candace Diaz Wins Steinbeck Fellowship

Did You Know?

The spring 2015 issue of MARY: A Journal of New Writing, the MFA Program's student-run online arts journal featuring creative nonfiction, fiction, poetry, reviews, and interviews has just been released. This issue includes poetry and prose, essays, a novella-in-progress, and work by Ruth Ozeki, author of A Tale for the Time Being— and for the first time, the Editors' Prize in Poetry, Fiction, and Nonfiction.

President Jim Donahue presented Assemblymember Catherine Baker (R-Danville) with photos of Saint Mary's for her Sacramento and San Ramon offices, part of an effort to reach out to state and federal legislative offices, said Tim Farley, director of community and government relations. "They represent Saint Mary's," Farley said, "and we want to showcase Saint Mary's as an important part of their district." An SMC photo already hangs in the Washington D.C. office of Congressman Mark DeSaulnier (D-Concord).

Produce Delivery Begins This Week on Campus

Through a new partnership proposed by Brandon Smith '16, Saint Mary's students, staff, and faculty can now get local, seasonal produce delivered to campus once a week through Farmigo, an online farmers' market start-up. The first delivery is Wednesday, April 29, 1:15 p.m., in Dryden Hall.

Jan Term Students Report from Rome on NPR

Communications Professor Ginny Prior, who accompanied 17 students along with Father David Gentry-Akin and Father Mike Russo to Rome over Jan Term, introduces a special student-produced audio show on NPR's "Journeys of Discovery with Tom Wilmer."

Student Employee of the Year: Lauren Borges '16

Lauren Borges '16, assistant supervisor for the reception area at the Kalmanovitz School of Education, was honored last week as the 2015 Student Employee of the Year. A business major with a passion for agriculture, Borges loves to hike, bake cookies, and collect donations for Relay for Life.
