Did You Know?

In July 2014, a small group of graduates of the M.F.A. in Creative Writing program launched The East Bay Review, an independent online literary magazine that publishes fiction, poetry, comics, essays, new journalism, and book reviews. "We saw there was a vacuum in the East Bay for independent journals," said Editor-in-Chief Jeff Chon M.F.A. '13, who teaches composition at SMC. Chon

Is Your Life What You Planned?

In the magazine's summer Roundtable feature, Saint Mary's alumni and staff reflect on the question: How has your life turned out differently than you planned? It's wise to try to plan your life in order to reach your goals. But sometimes the universe has other ideas.

College Class Inspires Alum's Garden

Lafayette photographer Stu Selland M.A. '05 has transformed his yard into sensory gardens inspired by a class he took at Saint Mary's in 2003, taught by Brother John O'Neill and Professor Denis Kelly. Twelve years later, his gardens are a habitat for butterflies, birds, and the most curious creatures of all—humans.

View from the Summer Wine Festival

said the all-volunteer group thought, "Why can't we champion literature from this region and beyond?" The magazine, whose tag line is "This is the epicenter. Be about it," publishes quarterly.
