In this project, I will guide the Sociology Department in assessing our program-level learning outcome focused on the application of sociological theory. After acknowledging widespread faculty concern about our majors’ grasp of theory, we made a curricular change in our course sequence three years ago. Now I would like to lead efforts in our department to check in on students’ theoretical application ability after this curricular change.