Keith Garrison

We will be assessing our students’ ability to meet higher-level learning outcomes and their skill in analysis and application of information. We are particularly interested in their ability to synthesize information across the sub-disciplines of biology. We will be using outside categorization of the difficulty level of questions to make the assessment mechanism more objective. We will be collecting data from our first year biology courses to assess increases in student performance on analysis and application-directed questions.