Men's Basketball Heads to the NCAA

The men's basketball team rejoiced and celebrated their NCAA Tournament bid—the first since the 2012-2013 season—in front of fans and media during yesterday's Selection Sunday Watch Party in McKeon Pavilion. SMC, seeded seventh, plays its first game Thursday at 4:20 p.m. (watch parties to be announced) against Virginia Commonwealth University (10th seed). All students, fans, faculty, staff and alumni are invited to come to McKeon Circle tomorrow at 4 p.m. to send the Gaels off to the first round of the NCAA Tournament in Salt Lake City against VCU. Watch the community react to the good news in this video.

Montini Fellowship Events on Interfaith Relations

The Cummins Institute will bestow the Montini Fellowship on Bishop John S. Cummins on Tuesday at 7:30 p.m. in the Soda Center. Professor Mehnaz Afridi, a Muslim theologian from Manhattan College, a Lasallian school in New York, will speak on "The Renewal of Catholic-Muslim Relations in a Challenging Era."

As a performing arts scholarship student, Evan Bernardy '18 balances studying jazz saxophone and business. At SMC, students don't have to major in performing arts for scholarships. This has helped Bernardy keep his options open. "If I feel really confident in my musical abilities, I might head to the East Coast and do more work as a saxophonist. Or perhaps I'll further my studies and will get an MBA."

Seminar Madness Continues

After 4,000 votes, the first round of Seminar Madness has been decided. There were several tight races—only a few votes separated Woolf's A Room of One's Own and Augustine's Confessions. Did your favorite make it through? Be sure to vote in Round 2, which ends Wednesday! Every vote counts. Also, check out the new Seminar Madness banner hanging in Oliver Hall.

Grad Fair for Undergrads

Learn about all things Commencement at the Grad Fair Wednesday, 10 a.m.–4 p.m., in the Soda Center, including Grad Grounds (aka plots), cultural graduations, caps and gowns, college rings, and senior portraits. Campus representatives from the Alumni Association, Career and Professional Development Services, Meetings, Events and Conference Services, Registrar's Office, and Intercultural Center will be there, plus vendors. Don't miss the catering blitz in Claeys Lounge, 12–2 p.m.

Adaora Ezike '18 focused on child marriage on International Women's Day last week. "I picked this sign so that on International Women's Day, we remember the girls who are fighting for their childhood, so that they can be girls again!" said Ezike, one of many who participated on Dante Quad, where women (and men) wore red in support of A Day Without a Woman, and listened to speakers from the Justice, Community, and Leadership Program and the Women's Resource Center.
