Student Learning Outcomes
B.A. in Classical Languages

- Students are familiar with the non-linguistic dimensions of Greek and Latin texts (mythology, culture, art, history).
- Students are familiar with the Greek and Latin roots in modern-day English.
- Students can describe and discuss the grammatical, rhetorical and stylistic features of Latin and Greek texts, as well as the way these features shape the ideas in these texts.
- Students can sight-read Latin and Greek texts with minimal help from dictionaries and commentaries.
- Students are able to use linguistic analysis in the historical, philosophical and theological interpretation of Greek and Latin texts.
